

Creature

The creature is half fish and half bird. They are completely black or completely white depending on their origin. They live in either the center of the Earth (black) or the heavens (white). They come to the surface for adventure. They like to perch on trees like owls and enjoy flight. Also they like to swim deep in the oceans or in beautiful areas such as coral reefs.

Their natural enemies are humans, what else could it be? Their skin is worth millions and they put up valiant fights against humans. Most of the time the creatures win, as they work well as a team against their enemies. They have two lives. They are born as either liking the sky or the sea with a certain skin, and are reborn after death almost instantly being transferred into the other. There is no known difference between the two, just their habitat and skin color. The creature is simply known as 'The Thing'

What else more do you need to know?